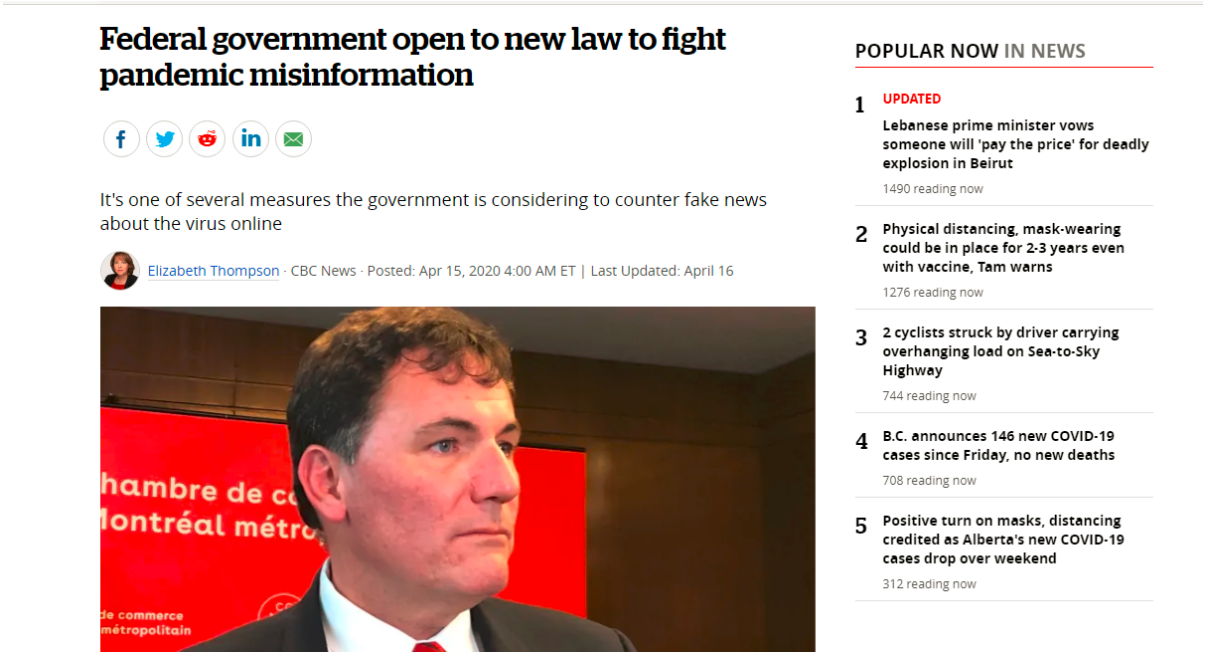
CANUCK LAW

Reporting That You're Not Getting Elsewhere (Do Your Own Research To Verify)

AUGUST 4, 2020 BY RONNIE

Dominic LeBlanc Proposes Law To Ban “Misinformation” About Virus



Federal government open to new law to fight pandemic misinformation

It's one of several measures the government is considering to counter fake news about the virus online

Elizabeth Thompson · CBC News · Posted: Apr 15, 2020 4:00 AM ET | Last Updated: April 16

POPULAR NOW IN NEWS

1 UPDATED
Lebanese prime minister vows someone will 'pay the price' for deadly explosion in Beirut
1490 reading now

2 Physical distancing, mask-wearing could be in place for 2-3 years even with vaccine, Tam warns
1276 reading now

3 2 cyclists struck by driver carrying overhanging load on Sea-to-Sky Highway
744 reading now

4 B.C. announces 146 new COVID-19 cases since Friday, no new deaths
708 reading now

5 Positive turn on masks, distancing credited as Alberta's new COVID-19 cases drop over weekend
312 reading now

1. Recent Proposal To Require Licensing

Keep in mind, if was only back in February that the Federal Government had proposed making it mandatory for media personalities to be licensed. Heritage Minister Steven Guilbeault admits that the panel proposing it was formed in 2018 by the Liberals.

So the Liberals are no stranger to attacking free speech. In fairness though, the groups pushing for media licensing may be different than those pushing to ban research into coronavirus.

2. Quotes From CBC Article

British MP Damian Collins is calling for new laws to make it an offence to knowingly spread misinformation that can harm people. (Stephanie Jenzer/CBC)

The federal government is considering introducing legislation to make it an offence to knowingly spread misinformation that could harm people, says Privy Council President Dominic LeBlanc.

LeBlanc told CBC News he is interested in British MP Damian Collins’s call for laws to punish those responsible for spreading dangerous misinformation online about the COVID-19 pandemic.

LeBlanc said he has discussed the matter already with other cabinet ministers, including Justice Minister David Lametti. If the government decides to follow through, he said, it could take a while to draft legislation.

“Legislatures and Parliaments are meeting scarcely because of the current context of the pandemic, so it’s not a quick solution, but it’s certainly something that we would be open [to] as a government,” said LeBlanc.

NDP MP Charlie Angus said he would support legislation to fight online misinformation.

Yes, this came out in April, but is worth revisiting. The Canadian Government is seriously open to the idea of cracking down on what it calls “misinformation” harmful to the public.

Also disturbing is an NDP MP who is open to joining the Liberals in this. This is after calls in the UK for similar laws.

> More recently, said Collins, the misinformation has shifted to conspiracy theories about what triggered the pandemic — claims that it was cooked up in a lab, for example. A conspiracy theory claiming the disease is caused by 5G wireless signals prompted attacks on wireless towers in the U.K.

> The British government has set up a rapid response team to correct false information circulating online. Collins has launched a fact-checking site called Infotagion, along with Angus and Liberal MP Nate Erskine-Smith, among others.

No this is not just a Canadian problem. It’s a problem for people (globally) who want to expose and write about what is really happening.

3. LeBlanc & Microsoft President Smith

Disinformation surging online during pandemic, says Microsoft president

Brad Smith says the company is also seeing a rise in cyber attacks on hospitals

Elizabeth Thompson · CBC News · Posted: May 26, 2020 5:54 PM ET | Last Updated: May 26

POPULAR NOW IN NEWS

1 UPDATED Lebanese prime minister vows someone will 'pay the price' for deadly explosion in Beirut — 1222 reading now

2 Physical distancing, mask-wearing could be in place for 2-3 years even with vaccine, Tam warns — 1121 reading now

3 2 cyclists struck by driver carrying overhanging load on Sea-to-Sky Highway — 671 reading now

4 B.C. announces 146 new COVID-19 cases since Friday, no new deaths — 545 reading now

5 Positive turn on masks, distancing credited as Alberta's new COVID-19 cases drop over weekend — 273 reading now

> There’s been an online surge in disinformation and misinformation linked to the COVID-19 pandemic in recent weeks, along with cyber attacks on hospitals, says the head of one of the world’s tech giants.

> Speaking at an event with Canadian Privy Council President Dominic LeBlanc this morning, Microsoft president Brad Smith said his company has seen a recent shift in the pattern of online attacks and efforts to spread false rumours and lies about the pandemic.

Microsoft President met with Dominic LeBlanc in May to talk about the wave of misinformation that was all over the internet. Never mind the obvious fact that Microsoft was headed by Bill gates until very recently, who is pushing the vaccine agenda.

4. Social Media Collusion Already Exists

Simon Harris TD
@SimonHarrisTD
Productive meeting with @Twitter , @facebook & @Google this afternoon about tackling vaccine misinformation. Companies beginning to take action but agree they have much more to do. Our #vaccinealliance will work with them to ensure users get the facts. #VaccinesWork
6:34 AM · Nov 25, 2019 · Twitter for iPhone
35 Retweets and comments
150 Likes

If we are going to have a law to ban “misinformation”, why don’t we start here? Social media companies like Twitter, Google and Facebook already work to promote the vaccine agenda. They already work together to dismiss critics. Wouldn’t that be a textbook case of what should be included in this proposed ban?

5. So What Exactly Is “Misinformation”?

World Health Organization

Health Topics | Countries | Newsroom | Emergencies | Data

About WHO

- About WHO
- Who we are
- What we do
- Where we work
- Governance
- Collaborations and partnerships
- Evaluation
- Planning, finance and accountability
- Global Service Centre

Dr Theresa Tam, BMBS (UK), FRCPC

Chief Public Health Officer, Public Health Agency of Canada

Biography

Dr Theresa Tam was named Canada's Chief Public Health Officer on June 26, 2017. She is a physician with expertise in immunization, infectious disease, emergency preparedness and global health security.

Dr Tam obtained her medical degree from the University of Nottingham in the U.K. She completed her paediatric residency at the University of Alberta and her fellowship in paediatric infectious diseases at the University of British Columbia. She is a Fellow of the Royal College of Physicians and Surgeons of Canada and has over 55 peer-reviewed journal publications in public health. She is also a graduate of the Canadian Field Epidemiology Program.

Dr Tam has held several senior leadership positions at the Public Health Agency of Canada, including as the Deputy Chief Public Health Officer and the Assistant Deputy cookies to improve your experience on our website. By using our website you consent to all cookies in accordance with our updated Cookie Notice. I ac

WORLD ECONOMIC FORUM Agenda Platforms Reports Events Videos English TopLink

Chrystia Freeland

Deputy Prime Minister and Minister for Intergovernmental Affairs, Office of the Deputy Prime Minister of Canada

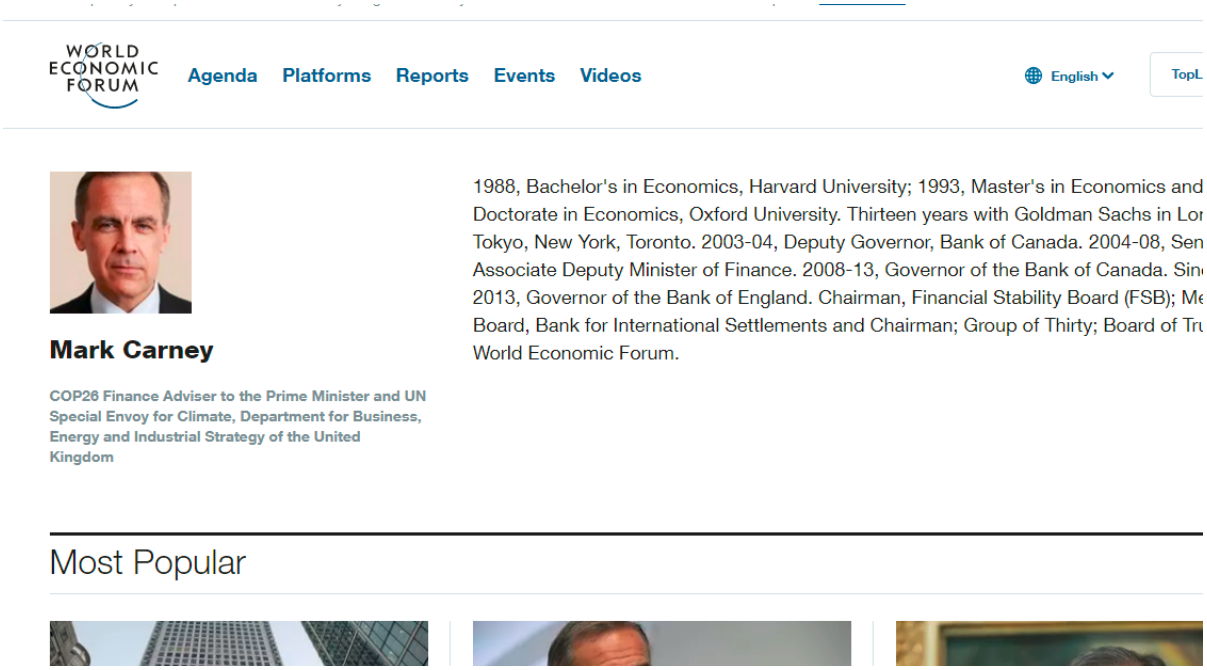
Journalist and author. Began career as a Ukraine-based stringer; went on to hold senior positions at the Globe and Mail, the Financial Times and Thomson Reuters. First elected as a Member of Parliament in November 2013, was appointed International Trade Minister in November 2015, Minister of Foreign Affairs in January 2017 and Deputy Prime Minister and Minister for Intergovernmental Affairs in November 2019. Has written two books: “Sale of the Century” (2000) and “Plutocrats” (2012). In 2018, recognised as Foreign Policy’s Diplomat of the Year and awarded the Eric M. Warburg Award by Atlantik-Brücke. Speaks Russian, Ukrainian, Italian, French and English. Member of the Board of Trustees of the World Economic Forum.

Subscribe for updates

A weekly update of what's on the Global Agenda

Email Subscribe

Follow Us



WORLD ECONOMIC FORUM
Agenda
Platforms
Reports
Events
Videos
English
1988, Bachelor's in Economics, Harvard University; 1993, Master's in Economics and Doctorate in Economics, Oxford University. Thirteen years with Goldman Sachs in Lor
Tokyo, New York, Toronto. 2003-04, Deputy Governor, Bank of Canada. 2004-08, Sen
Associate Deputy Minister of Finance. 2008-13, Governor of the Bank of Canada. Sin
2013, Governor of the Bank of England. Chairman, Financial Stability Board (FSB); Me
Board, Bank for International Settlements and Chairman; Group of Thirty; Board of Tru
World Economic Forum.
Mark Carney
COP26 Finance Adviser to the Prime Minister and UN Special Envoy for Climate, Department for Business, Energy and Industrial Strategy of the United Kingdom
Most Popular

Is it “misinformation” to point out that Chief Public Health Officer Theresa Tam works for the World Health Organization?

Or how about that Deputy Prime Minister Chystia Freeland also is on the Board of Trustees for the World Economic Forum? And to mention Mark Carney, former head of the Bank of Canada, is as well? Is it “misinformation” to point out that the WEF was behind getting CV declared a pandemic, and now pushes the GREAT RESET?

Is it “misinformation” to point out that on August 4, Theresa Tam parroted the World Health Organization’s line about a vaccine not being a silver bullet?

Is it “misinformation” to point out the rampant lobbying by the pharmaceutical industry here, here, here, and here?

Is it “misinformation” to point out the vast research done into vaccine hesitancy? This is research into psychological manipulation to convince people that vaccines are safe. Not research into MAKING safe vaccines, but research into CONVINCING you that they already are. See here and here.

Is it “misinformation” to point out M-132 was launched PRIOR to this pandemic, to finance drugs, and drug research for the entire world?

Is it “misinformation” to point out that the Bill & Melinda Gates Foundation is a major and regular contributor to Imperial College London, who does the CV modelling?

Is it “misinformation” to point out the vaccine bonds industry we send money to offers nothing of substance in return?

6. Still Just A Proposal (For Now)

While it seems to still just be an idea for consideration, it’s a chilling one. Such a law would effectively give the government the right to silence anyone who criticizes its agenda, REGARDLESS of how accurate or factual it may be.

On a personal note: could this site be shut down under the guise of “promoting misinformation”? Could all of this work cease to exist?

CANADA, EDUCATION, FREE SPEECH, GLOBALISM, HEALTH, MEDIA, VACCINES

One Reply to “Dominic LeBlanc Proposes Law To Ban “Misinformation” About Virus”

IndieMediaEastcoast Canada

MAY 13, 2021 AT 6:31 AM

I hope that Dominic decides to join the good guys.. but its his choice…
everyone has a choice…
https://indiemediaeastcoastcanada.blogspot.com/2020/04/is-this-year-that-hottie-joseph-gregory.html
I’m just waiting on that 100th monkey now.. watching the shitshow… what happened to Blue Apple… she seems to have disappeared from youtube and twitter.. Ontario is suffering but why? Do they like these nazis that much?